election board, today, was making an investigation by telephone and tele-graph of the shortage of ballots, al-leged by Arthur Geissler, chairman of the regulations state committee to exin in several countries of the state Investigation Made

The some cases I have found that bortages do event, while in others I have found that they do not," said Secretary Morris "I am making a thorough investigation and no effort will be apared to see that ballot, both the regular and those containing the state questions reach every precinct in the state," he said to all places where the shortages exort M. Morris says it is due to an marcase in the registration since the requirition was made for the ballots. Ballots were ordered according to the regulation of the different precincts, an allowance being made for an increase, but Morris says the increase exceeded expectations.
